2. My first visit to the site was in 1946 with my father. The field had a patch of blue-green color near the center. I know of no photographs taken.
3. No
4. I inherited the land from my mother's estate in 1958. My father had purchased the property from Charles Hollinger in 1946.

6. No
7. My father asked Mr. Hollinger what the blue-green coloring was. Mr. Hollinger told my father it was residue from manufacturing Prussin Blue dye and that it was an inert substance. He also offered to supply fill dirt when it became available to cover it over. This he did some time later.
8. My father had attempted a vegetable garden on the site, but it didn't do well due to lack of irrigation. After which it reverted to weeds.
9. I was aware the dye residue was on the site and that it was ugly to look at until it was covered over.
